

The heat is on.

As temperatures rise, so do the health risks for your pet.

Summer brings mosquitoes, the main culprit for spreading HEARTWORM DISEASE, a serious and potentially fatal condition. Ask us how our new preventive plans can help keep your pet safe.

DOGS

- Virtually 100% of dogs exposed to infective heartworm larvae become infected with the disease.
- It can take up to six months after infection for a dog to test positive for heartworms.

CATS

- Heartworms affect both dogs and cats in all 50 states.
- 25% of cats affected by heartworms live indoors all the time.
- There is no treatment for feline heartworm disease.

Take it to heart. Sign up for a preventive care plan today.

To keep your pet protected, sign up now for one of our budget-friendly preventive care plans—complete with bundled services like heartworm testing, which is critical to the early detection of heartworm disease.